

Shouldn't we practice democracy before we promote it or push down people's throats with missiles?

I believe the control of the media by a few vested interests - with defense ties is what we called "Propaganda when the Russians did it.

I oppose a vote to change the ownership of media. This whole process smacks of deliberate disregard for the views of the American people. Public involvement is what democracy is all about.

A rule change on consolidation of the media would serve private not public interests. The public deserves to be fully informed and that can happen only when many and diverse views are put before the voting public. I urge you retain the current ownership rules.
